PREFACE

THEOLOGICAL STUDIES began publication in February 1940. It was then, as it continues to be, a project of the Society of Jesus in the United States. In its earlier years, the moving forces in TS's production were the (then) six U.S. theological seminaries staffed by the Jesuits: in Alma, Calif.; Mundelein, Ill.; St. Mary's, Kans.; West Baden, Ind.; Weston, Mass.; and Woodstock, Md. Over the years, several factors served to broaden the theological base that undergirds this quarterly. Four of the Jesuit faculties listed above have ceased to exist; productive Catholic theology moved out in large measure to the universities; theology itself became increasingly, inescapably ecumenical.

Only three editors-in-chief have directed TS these four decades: William J. McGarry, S.J. (1940-41); John Courtney Murray, S.J. (1942-67); and Walter J. Burghardt, S.J. (1967-). The editorial offices have shifted from New York City (1940-41) to Woodstock College in Maryland (1942-70), to the same college in New York City (1970-74), to their present location in Washington, D.C.

This first multiyear TS index is modest indeed (authors, titles, books), but it should prove useful. It is worth noting that a 38-page detailed index of Richard McCormick's Moral Notes is available in his Notes on Moral Theology 1965 through 1980 (Washington, D.C.: University Press of America, 1981).
